

Name: _____

Bystanders Online

You post some new photos on Facebook of you and your friends at a party. One of your online contacts makes some rude comments about how your friend looks in the photos.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

A student in your class is laughing and showing everyone a video on her phone of another student crying.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

You receive an email of a Photoshopped picture of a classmate with a message urging you to add something nasty and pass it on.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

A group of your friends plays the same online game. You organize to meet online and play cooperatively on Tuesday nights. Another student outside the group wants to join in, but your friends refuse to let him.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

A text message is circulating through the class declaring that Jeff and John are going to fight behind the shed at lunch and to be there. Jeff seems very nervous.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

You and your friends like to post on a skateboarding forum. One night, you see a thread your friend started being continuously trolled by a poster you don't know.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

On Facebook, one of your classmates has an embarrassing photo of another student as his profile picture. He is encouraging everyone else to save the photo and use it as his or her profile picture too. Many students have done so.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

Your school has a swim meet, and everyone has to swim in at least one race. One student in your class isn't a very good swimmer, but she does her one race anyway. Later a cell phone video is posted on YouTube showing how bad she was in the race.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

Some kids in your class are spamming another student's Facebook page. It is just for fun, but the student is very annoyed, as it makes it very hard to use the site to contact friends.

How do you feel?

What do you do?

You are in a chat room talking to some kids from school. Josh is only responding to Jenna's posts, and all he does is pick apart what she says and try to make her look bad.

How do you feel?

What do you do?