

Figure 3.4: Concepts of Print Assessment Tasks

Concept of Print	Description	Assessment Tasks
Book organization	All books have covers and pages that people read in a specific order.	Hand the student the book, holding it vertically with the spine facing the student. Ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Where is the front of the book?”</li> <li>• “Where is the back of the book?”</li> <li>• “Please open the book to where the story begins.”</li> </ul>
Print function	The function of print is to carry meaning.	With the book open to page 1, say to the student: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Please show me the picture.”</li> <li>• “Please show me the words.”</li> </ul>
Page orientation	Reading in English goes from the top of the page to the bottom of the page.	With the book open to page 1, say to the student: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Please show me where to start reading.” (If the student’s response is vague, say, “Where exactly? Please point with your finger.”)</li> </ul> Point to the first word, read it, and then ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Where do I read after this?”</li> </ul>
Print direction	Reading in English goes from left to right, line by line.	Turn to a page with at least two lines of text. Read the top line and keep your finger on the last word. Ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Where do I read after this?”</li> </ul>
Page order	People read book pages in a specific order.	Point to the last word on the left page and ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Where do I read after this?”</li> </ul> Point to the last word on the right page and ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Where do I read after this?”</li> </ul>
One-to-one correspondence	One printed word corresponds to one spoken word.	Point to the first word on a new page (before reading it) and say to the student: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Please point to each word as I read this line.”</li> </ul>
Role of punctuation	Writers use punctuation to signal types of sentences and the ends of sentences.	Point to a period (trace it with a pencil) and ask: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “What is this?”</li> <li>• “What is it for?”</li> </ul>
Letter-word discrimination	Words and letters are different; writers use letters to make words.	Give the student two strips of paper and demonstrate how they slide together and apart on a page in the book. On the same page, say to the student: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “Please show me one letter.”</li> <li>• “Please show me one word.”</li> <li>• “Please show me the first letter in a word.”</li> <li>• “Please show me the last letter in a word.”</li> </ul>

Source: Teachers College Reading and Writing Project. (2006). Concepts about print assessment. Accessed at https://connect.readingandwritingproject.org/file/download?google\_drive\_document\_id=0B3yKjAsMtuECVXFvM1NVZ1BJenc on January 15, 2018.