

Chapter 5 Reflection Questions

Now that you have completed the chapter, consider and reflect on the following questions.

1. Imagine you were successfully getting students to learn out loud in your classroom. What would this look and sound like?
2. Consider the think-pair-share strategy. What are some questions you could ask your students to focus on during an upcoming lesson?
3. Do you view your classroom as a place that provides many opportunities for students to discuss, share, and learn from each other? If so, what are some strategies you use for this? If not, what is holding you back? What strategies could you start implementing to increase student interaction?
4. Do you currently provide opportunities for your students to use their devices as learning tools? If so, good for you! If not, why not? Talk to some teachers who are incorporating personal technology into their classrooms. Ask them how they do it and what the benefits are.
